Have a good look around if you are able, ask questions and get a good feel for the school. In the 3 years our child has been at the school we have had no issues and any concerns we have had the school have dealt with immediately and within our expectations.

This school has been so supportive at the worst of times, it has supported our SEN child so much.

I would say that the school and all staff care about the child and put focus and emphasis on making sure that the children are happy and healthy. Learning is fun and children are taught not just academically but socially as well. The Learning Powers are a real strength that underpins school life. The extra-curricular options are fantastic and the school is welcoming for children and adults alike. My daughter and now my son have (and still do) love being part of the William Law family and that is all I can wish for as a parent.

A great community school where children are happy and learn a great curriculum.

You can trust the school to care, nurture and positively challenge your child.

Even though this is a large school is still has a real family and community culture and all our children have blossomed and developed significantly from the approach.

Really good school and you will never regret at your choice. School staff and especially the Head is amazing and they know very well how to tackle a problem if there is any regarding bullying or behaviour issues.

I should also state that we are not a religious family but the values, manners and thoughts that my son has, is thanks to the ethos and teaching at William Law, my son is turning into a thoughtful and caring young boy who has lots of questions about the world.

It's a good school with great RE and music facilities

That you have lots of resources and experiences for the children – more so than other schools

A good school that caters well for my child. It includes a breadth of foundation and creative subjects which makes the learning enjoyable for the children.

Many friends whose children attend different local schools have had many issues which I just have not had at William Law. I find communication excellent and the regular use of Tapestry is invaluable to me

If you want your child to be educated with good values and encouragement then this is the school. Excellent staff and facilities. My son loves it!

Out of all the primary schools in the area, this one appeared to be the most welcoming and suitable for my child. It presented very well, with a good environment we thought our child would enjoy.

Have a look and see for yourself! The school has varying benefits for children from all sorts of backgrounds and faiths! It doesn't feel like a big school when you are in and all the children are so well cared for individually.
